Community Greening – Live Staking with Partners

Huntingdon County Conservation District is a proud member of Chesapeake Conservancy's Live Stake Collaborative program. In collaboration with Chesapeake Conservancy, the district helps plan a unique opportunity for underclassmen from Juniata College. This past year, up to 55 students got to participate in this event. Live stakes are branch cuttings taken from riparian tree and shrub species that can take root and grow into their own tree – a process similar to propagation.

Collections

Juniata College students this past winter got to collect live stakes in an event hosted by Chesapeake Conservancy and the district in Huntingdon. Up to 55 students collected up to 1,200 live stakes from varying species. Students were educated in the process of live staking, and how this is a low cost and sustainable way to implement more vegetation into a stream

Planting Along Impaired Stream

These same students were able to have a special experience; planting the same live stakes they collected. These stakes were planted within stream stabilization projects and will help with the effectiveness of these structures. Live stakes are a great option to plant within these projects as their roots act as a net in the soil which slows erosion and allows other vegetation to establish in the buffer.

Waterway Cleanup – Tony Seguin Memorial

Huntingdon County Conservation District in partnership with Rothrock Outfitters holds an annual river cleanup of the Juniata River. This was the 12th annual cleanup, and the second year was held in memory of Tony Seguin, an adored community member and owner of Rothrock Outfitters.

Juniata River Cleanup

This year, up to 30 dedicated community members helped clean up a section of the Juniata River in the Kistler area. In total this year, we were able to get 1 ton of trash and over 100 tires removed from the waterway. The pizza and ice cream afterward is always a welcomed treat after!

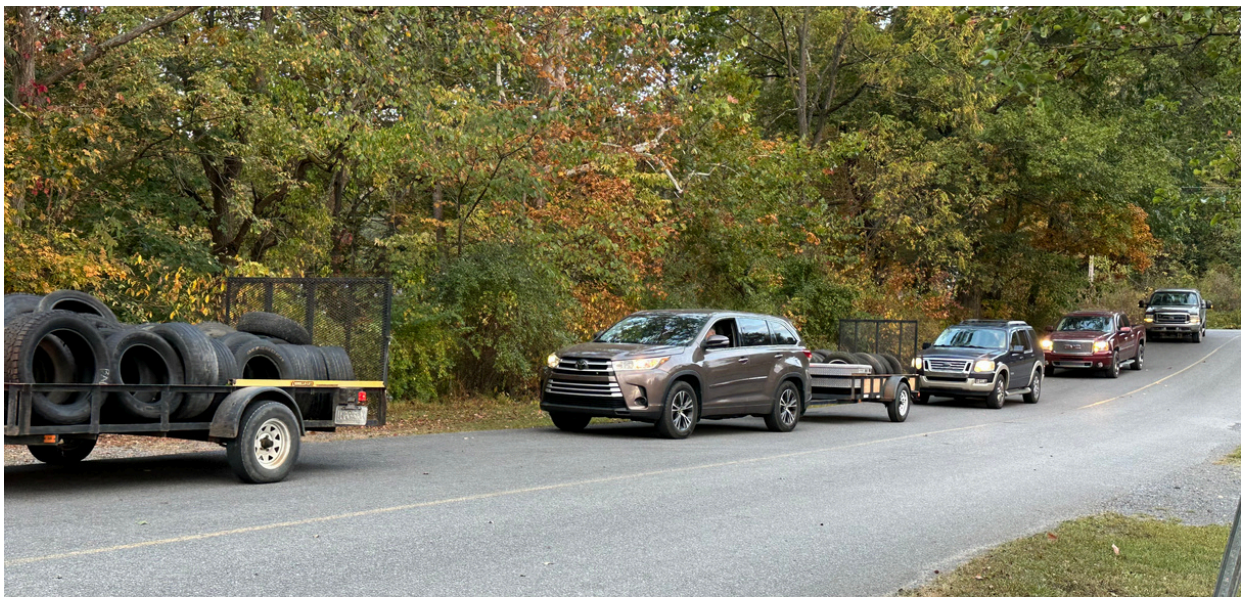

Waste Reduction and Recycling - Tire Wars

Huntingdon County Conservation District was happy to reintroduce our annual tire recycling event for county residents. Through this event, residents can dispose of tires at affordable rates to ensure tires are handled responsibly.

Tire Collection

This year, up to 18 dedicated community members helped the district to load and unload tires into trucks. In total this year, we were able to fill two tractor trailers from top to bottom, resulting in a grand total of 1,611 tires. Through this program, we were able to serve 96 households and collected 1,522 car tires alone. Since we offered the program in 2009, we have collected over 22,695 tires.

Educational Outreach – Community Events

One way Keep Huntingdon County Beautiful reaches out to community members in Huntingdon is by talking and interacting with them at tabling events alongside the conservation district.

Huntingdon County Fair

This year, Keep Huntingdon County Beautiful attended the county fair. Our table detailed future events, including the return of our annual Tire Wars. Additionally, we were able to offer technical assistance for conservation programming.

Municipality Night

This is a night where different members and leaders of township municipality come together to meet and greet fellow community members, and to learn about work and outreach going on in the county. At our table, we discussed recycling education, and the benefits of waterway cleanups.
